

2003 Fall Boat Show Buyer's Guide

A Special Advertising Section

Polar 2300

23 feet just got a lot bigger!

Customers have a lot to say about the recently introduced Polar 2300 Center Console. Typical responses have been "Are you sure that's only 23 feet?" This feature packed boat is sure to be an offshore hit.

One look at the Polar 2300 Center Console and you will understand new standards for fishing features and creature comforts have been established.

One of the first things you will notice is the dramatic bow flare and extended transom. Although these two features combine to create an eye catching, head turning style, the inside of the boat is also extraordinary in function.

The offset transom not only acts as a built in bracket putting your props in cleaner water, but it also creates more cockpit space than the traditional flat transom. And yes, I did say props. Although only 23 feet, this boat can be powered with a single or dual engine setup. This feature, not found on many of the competitor's 23 foot models, allows the customer a choice. The single engine configuration allows the walkaround aft platform to increase and the motor well to decrease. Another first from the Polar design team.

Moving inside you will find a 48-gallon baitwell on centerline at the transom, where it's suppose to be, and a bait prep station with freshwater washdown. Check out the cockpit sole and you will discover two large fish boxes with macerator pumps standard.

A large dry storage box up front is insulated and drains overboard just in case you need additional cooler space. The large console has plenty of room for electronics and also encloses the standard porta-potti or the optional vacuum flush head with porcelain bowl and holding tank. The list of standard and optional features is truly amazing for a 23 foot center console.

But the story doesn't end with looks and function. All Polar products meet or exceed NMMA standards. Polar's total composite construction, plug and play electrical system and attention to detail insures durability and ease of ownership.

For more information regarding this exciting new center console, contact Polar Boats at 1-800-839-4182 or on the web at www.polarboats.com